Project description:

This project is a detailed data analysis for supermarket sales. The supermarket under analysis has three branches in different cities. Each branch's customers' purchases have been recorded. The purchases' data included how many items have been purchased and their product category, how much they've paid, and the cost, price, and profit from each purchase. The project file included three dashboards discussing products, payments, and customers. Each dashboard focused on the analysis of the influence of several elements on the profit and performance of the sales.
